U.S. Warplanes Aid Cambodia

Fierce Battle Continues Atop Mountain

SAIGON (AP)—U.S. warplanes were reported flying combat missions in support of Cambodian troops southwest of Phnom Penh today, while to the north of the capital Cambodian and Communist troops battled in the streets of Kompong Thom.

Little ground fighting was reported in South Vietnam, but the U.S. Command reported 33 enemy rocket and mortar attacks in the past 24 hours, the largest number in a day since June 28. The command said all the casualties were Vietnamese, including 10 killed and 24 wounded in the town of Giong Trom in the Mekong Delta.

In Laos, Indochina's third war front, a new peace initiative got under way, but there was no prospect of speedy and decisive developments.

U.S. Air Force Phantoms were reported in action in Cambodia in support of five government battalions massed on the slopes of the Kiri Rom plateau for an attempt to retake the 2,000-foot-high area from Viet Cong and North Vietnamese who captured it last week.

Col. Sar Hor, the government and deputy military commander of the province southwest of Phnom Penh, told Associated Press correspondent T. Jeff Williams that the U.S. Phantoms were dropping bombs and napalm on Kiri Rom and on enemy forces between his headquarters at Kompong Speu and Kiri Rom.

These forces have cut Highway 4 through the province, cutting off Phnom Penh's oil supplies from the country's only refinery on the coast and blocking reinforcements and supplies for the government force at Kiri Rom. The provincial governor told Williams his immediate goal is to reopen the highway.

TOMORROW'S PRIMARY PICKS

CANDIDATES FOR NOVEMBER

Legislative Battles Key To Interest

Five Seeking Seat Vacated By Rep. Pears

The urge to vote will be strongest Tuesday in districts with hot races for nominations to state legislative posts and in units with major local issues on the ballot. Polls will be open from 7 a.m. to 8 p.m. for the primary election.

The 43rd Legislative District is one most keenly contested battleground in the area as four candidates seek the Republican nomination for the seat being vacated by retiring Don Pears.

Other Republican battles are in the 54th Legislative District of Allegan and Van Buren counties and the 23rd State Senatorial district covering Van Buren, Allegan, Ottawa and a township in Barry county.

Democrats have intra-party struggles in the 22nd State Senatorial District of Berrien, Cass and St. Joseph counties and the Fourth Congressional District.

There's also an occasional scrap in the area for nominations for county commissioners and township offices.

Statewide races are highlighted by the Republican battle for U.S. Senate nomination between Mrs. Lenore Romney and Robert Huber; and the four-way Democratic battle for the gubernatorial slot in the November election. Candidates are Zoltan Ferency, Sander Levin, George Managomery and George Parris.

LEGISLATIVE HOPEFULS

Rivals in the intense 43rd district race are Harry Gast, Lincoln township supervisor and farmer-businessman; Larry Grosser, Southwestern Michigan college teacher and farmer; Ray Leatz, St. Joseph barber, and John Weakley, Berrien Springs barber.

The bulk of the district's votes are in Berrien county with only four townships of Cass voting in the 43rd. Grosser has run an energetic campaign hitting particularly hard in south Berrien hopeful that Gast and Leatz will battle to a stalemate in the northern part of the district.

Gast and Leatz also have run highly organized campaigns with Gast citing his many years in local government and counting on the identity that goes with it. Leatz is a former St. Joseph city supervisor who also has established identity over the years.

Weakley's campaign has had less fanfare as he vows to take the "Law Book" and the "Good Book" to Lansing.

Waiting in the wings for the November runoff in the 43rd District is Democrat James Booth of Buchanan.

Nine-term State Rep. Edson V. Root, Jr., is challenged in the 54th District Republican Primary by Bela E. Kennedy, Bangor farmer, and Robert P. Russell of Lawton, a retired aviator. Democrat Michael Dittlinger of Grand Junction is unopposed.

ZOLLAR UNOPPOSED

Mrs. Mary R. (Eamon) Rutledge, a St. Joseph housewife, opposes Paul C. Clark, an industrial worker of Niles, for the Democratic nomination in the 22nd State Senatorial district. Republican incumbent Charles O. Zollar is unopposed.

West Indies Ferry Upsets; 175 To 200 Feared Dead

NEVIS, West Indies (AP)—A 75-foot motor launch designed to carry about 180 people on its ferry shuttles between the islands of Nevis and St. Kitts had aboard "probably 270 to 300" persons when it capsized and sank in five minutes Saturday, a government official said Sunday night.

Between 175 and 200 were feared dead. Forty-three bodies had been recovered by late Sunday, and there were 88 survivors. All were believed residents of the two islands except three Roman Catholic nuns.

Two from Canada and one from England—who were drowned.

The U.S. Coast Guard said some of the others might have been washed out to sea. But most were believed entombed with the boat's captain, James Pontee, inside the steel hull in 130 feet of water about a mile off the southeast tip of St. Kitts.

Coast Guard divers were to inspect the hull later this week.

Harbormaster Edrade Walwyn estimated the number of passengers aboard the ferry Christina when she went down

Saturday, but he said ticket records were aboard the boat.

Lee Moore, information officer for the local government acknowledged that the government ferry "had on slightly too many passengers" and added,

Texas Bracing For Hurricane

CORPUS CHRISTI, Tex. (AP)—Hurricane Celia moved across the Gulf of Mexico today toward the Corpus Christi area of the lower Texas coast. Hurricane warnings were posted.

The weather bureau said the storm was expected to strike the coast later today with as much as eight inches of rain and winds of at least 90 miles an hour.

The Weather Bureau said the threat to the upper Texas coast had somewhat diminished but precautions should not be relaxed.

WINDS DIMINISH

The bureau said the storm was moving at 15 miles per hour, that its winds had diminished from 115 m.p.h. to 90 m.p.h. At dawn Celia was about 200 miles southeast of Corpus Christi.

Swells 6 to 8 feet high—to the delight of some young surfers—pounded the coast in advance of the storm Sunday night while thousands of persons seeking to escape the fury of Celia clogged highways leading out of Galveston.

The Coast Guard warned all persons to clear Texas beaches. Hurricane warnings extended from near Corpus Christi north-east to Port Arthur, near the Texas-Louisiana border. Gale warnings were in effect from Morgan City, La., to Corpus Christi.

MOTELS, HOTELS FULL

Motels and hotels in Conroe and Huntsville, 100 miles north of the coast, filled Sunday night with refugees.

Republican Senate Race Seen Close

Huber Pares Gap In Fight With Lenore

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Rank-and-file Republicans decide Tuesday whether to follow the advice of party leaders by voting for Lenore Romney for the U.S. Senate nomination, or whether to approve of the candidacy of maverick State Sen. Robert Huber.

Huber has closed the gap, according to some observers, in his campaign to overtake Mr. Romney, who was expected to win handily in March after the Republican delegates from throughout the state designated her the "consensus candidate."

Some political pollsters say that the contest appears to be much closer than anticipated.

The winner meets Sen. Philip A. Hart, D-Mich., in the general election. Hart is unopposed in the Democratic primary Tuesday.

The liveliest battle the Democrats have will be for the nomination for governor, with four candidates — Macomb County Prosecutor George Parris; former State Democratic Chairman Zoltan Ferency, State Sen. Sander Levin, and State Rep. George F. Montgomery — vying for the spot.

TOKEN OPPOSITION

Gov. William Milliken—who has endorsed Mrs. Romney—faces only token opposition in the gubernatorial nomination. His opponent is Howell magazine publisher James Turner.

Less than 30 per cent of the registered four million Michigan voters are expected to go to the poll, says State Elections Director Bernard Apol. He estimated a voter turnout of only about 1.1 million.

Adding to the voter turnout in Detroit among other items will be whether to recall four Detroit Board of Education members. A citizens group circulated the petitions for the drive, to oppose the school decentralization plan supported by the four board members. The plan would further integrate the schools.

Huber, of Troy, has focused much of his attacks on Mrs. Romney's husband, Secretary of Housing and Urban Development George Romney.

Huber, a conservative, has told voters they would have to decide whether "this is a popularity contest or whether it's a bitter struggle to protect those things which we have inherited."

On the other hand, Mrs. Romney has largely ignored Huber's candidacy. She said she is the best qualified, citing her work in volunteer social action and her knowledge of politics and political leaders in Washington and elsewhere.

'Vote,' Governor Milliken Urges

LANSING (AP)—Gov. William Milliken has urged every registered voter in Michigan to go to the polls and cast a ballot in Tuesday's primary election. Milliken conceded that primaries do not attract as much attention as general elections, but said: "They are a vitally important part of the Democratic process." Michigan voters, he said, will be nominating candidates for a wide variety of offices, including the governorship, a U. S. Senate seat, the U. S. House of Representatives, the State Legislature and many local offices.

"Michigan citizens who are concerned about problems in their own communities, in the state and in the nation can best attack these problems through the polls — by nominating the best men for office," Milliken said. "I urge voters, regardless of their party, to meet their responsibilities as citizens fully by voting in Tuesday's primary as well as in the November general election," the governor said.

Fragile Agreement In The Mideast

Israel's chary acceptance of a 90-day armistice with its Arab enemies is the first, hesitant step toward a long hoped for cooling down of an international trouble zone.

The commitment is limited to the Egyptian front, primarily the Suez canal, thus leaving the Israeli army free to manhandle Arab guerrillas operating from the Jordanian border.

Officially the Jordanian government agreed to the cease fire, along with Egypt, before the Israeli cabinet gave its assent. The Jordanian government, however, seemingly lacks the power to oust the invaders from their sanctuary.

The second step is to work out the mechanics of the cease fire consensus.

Then, within the 90 days try to reach an understanding or lay the foundations for continued negotiations.

The arrangement is so egg shell thin, it could blow apart if someone so much as glanced sideways. Yet it defies the 1000 to 1 odds of a few weeks ago of even being patched together.

It could not have come about except through a secret understanding between the Kremlin and Washington and perhaps Paris that the game is not worth the candle in permitting the Suez battleline to escalate into something worse than another Viet Nam.

Presumably at least Egypt would not have accepted our State Department overtures unless prodded by Russia, her economic and military supporter.

Likewise, France which retains a substantial influence among several of the Arabs probably lent a helping hand. If this assumption is correct, it leads to a further hope that France is shedding some of the excessive dramatics with which former President DeGaulle conducted the country's affairs.

The Israeli hesitation to touch the olive branch extended by our Secretary of State Rogers stems from a fear of losing the military advantage Israel has held since the Six Day War in 1967. The apprehension is that Egypt will consolidate her Russian supplied installations near the canal during the armistice and then in November unleash new attack.

Quite likely underlying another, though unpublished, objection by several members in the Israeli cabinet is the means by which the present arrangement was reached.

It is, in reality, imposed from the outside by the major powers. It has been the repeated stand by the Israeli government that outsiders can not settle a family argument.

Goldie Meyer, the Israeli premier, presumably overcame this opposition only because the Israeli man in the street is tiring of the inconclusive state of affairs since the brilliantly executed fight of three years ago.

Indulging further in assumptions, this time that for expediency if nothing else, the Kremlin wants to pour oil on stormy waters, converting the armistice into something more durable comes back to the family fight background.

As late as May 1st, the annual birthday for the Communist world, Premier Nasser repeated his three-year statement that Egypt will not discuss a peace treaty so long as the Israeli occupies any Arab territory, particularly Egyptian soil.

He elaborated in this fashion: "We have now wrested away from the Israelis the military initiative on the Suez Canal. We don't want to use it to destroy anyone. But we intend to liberate our land and we are going to do so."

While his participation in the armistice is a partial amendment of that stand, everyone involved in the negotiations knows that no lasting treaty can be put together unless Israel pulls out of the Gaza strip. The same condition would apply to occupation in other neighboring Arab states.

This runs counter to statements made by the Israeli government following the 1967 Six Day War which hold that Israel needs breathing space beyond its official borders.

Cracking that nut may require less of hammer than the pick axe to smash upon the real stone in the road.

This is the presence of Israel itself.

For all his bombast, Nasser speaks for the Arab leaders, however temperate some of them may be, when he describes Israel as a fraud upon the Arab world.

Israel as a Jewish homeland takes its inspiration from the Balfour Declaration of 1915.

Sir Arthur Balfour, then the British prime minister, issued a white paper which stated that His Majesty's government looks with favor upon the establishment of a Jewish national homeland consistent with the self determination of all people concerned.

England at that time was striving to eradicate Turkish control of Arab lands running east from Egypt and north to the Turk border in Asia Minor.

She enlisted the help of several tribal leaders in this endeavor through broad, though vague, promises of eventual independence.

At the same time she had an understanding with the French government to parcel out the Turkish dominion.

The nicety in Balfour's wording of the white paper was an outer expression of carrying water on both shoulders. Most historians consider the Declaration as intended to be no more than a weapon of war somewhat in the nature of one school kid telling another you do this now for me and maybe I'll do something for you later.

Balfour held out the promise of a Jewish homeland because of the assistance the Zionist movement was lending England in the major effort to defeating Germany. At the same time he was outlining to the Arab leaders the vision of Pan Islamism.

From the Versailles Treaty to the establishment of the United Nations, the World War I victors carried out very little in the Balfour Declaration.

Palestine went to England as a mandated territory. France took Syria. Only the Arabian Peninsula attained independence.

The UN charter, under FDR's prodding, recognized this double cross, but in the Arabs' eyes substituted an equivalent venality by surveying Palestine as a Jewish state.

The sole consolation was to place the ancient portion of Jerusalem under joint Arab-Jew control because of its symbolism in the Hebraic and Islamic faiths.

Emotion is more than a fact. It makes facts. Once a person or a group of persons develops an opinion, this evaluation has a way of cementing into a total motivation.

Israel consequently is the same state of mind that Ulster is in Ireland or a line fence dispute is between adjoining landowners.

Any argument has a theoretical negotiability.

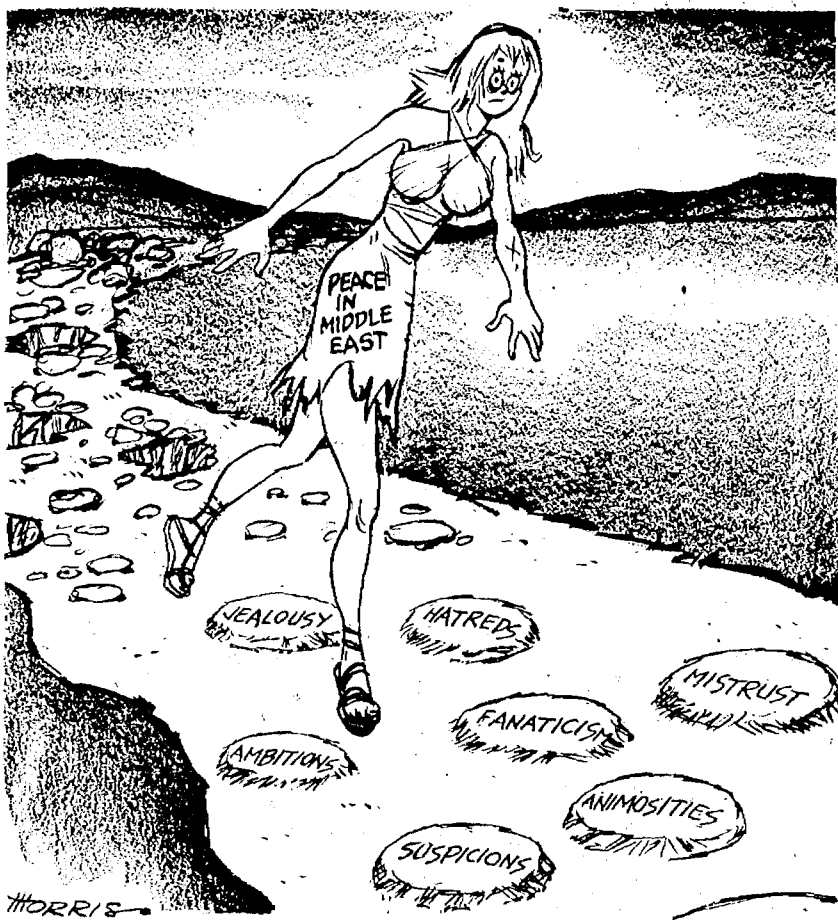

The Arab-Israeli breach strains the theory because of its "what's mine is mine" nature.

The armistice is more likely to flounder on this point than on any of the other obstacles in the Mideastern situation.

Giving a chance on talking rather than shooting, however, is significant. It's the first time actually since Israel came into existence 23 years ago.

At age 21, Abraham Lincoln paid for some trousers by splitting 400 fence rails for each yard of cloth.

CANDIDATE CHARGES CIRCULARS MISLEADING

My letter relates to Deceptive Campaigning or a Candidate Wants Fair Play. Perhaps I am being old-fashioned at age 31 but I like to have all the cards on the table. I am a candidate for Lincoln Township Trustee for a two-year term on the Republican ticket. Last Saturday I received an announcement in the mail which just didn't seem right. Let's see what you think.

The following is the wording I found on the announcement in the return address or sender section, "Paid for by fellow residents interested in responsible representative government." The card was addressed to Postal Patron Local and had a Bulk Rate Permit for the postage.

The wording in the sender section obviously does not tell me who or what organization sent the card and what they stand for.

Now I am getting to the part that is more deceptive. Following is the message that appears on the back of the card. It is headed "Lincoln Township Republican Trustee Candidates" and lists two trustee candidates who are running for two-year terms and lists two trustee candidates who are running for two-four-year terms. It would appear by the wording that the announcement was a mailing by the Republican Party to familiarize people with the Republican candidates. This is false. It was not a mailing by the Republican Party but rather a mailing by a certain special interest group. A mailing by a special interest group is okay if they would give an indication of who they are and what they stand for rather than a nebulous collection of words as printed in the sender section.

The following are the other Republican candidates for the trustee positions for the Lincoln Township Board. For two-year terms, Anthony S. Dlouhy and Arthur Siewert, for four-year terms, Richard N. Berry and Arthur A. Schneider. As I am the writer of this letter, I must stand completely responsible for the statements I have made. Thought you would be interested!

..And Speaking Of Your Health

What special precautions should be taken for a 10-year-old boy who has recovered from an attack of rheumatic fever?

Mrs. T. K., Washington
Dear Mrs. K.: One of the best guides to recovery from rheumatic fever is a sedimentation test of the blood.

This is an interesting test that depends on how rapidly red blood cells taken from the patient falls to the bottom of a thin test tube.

When this remains normal for a few weeks, and if there has been no heart complications, the condition can be assumed to be arrested. Each case must be individually evaluated by the doctor who has been following the patient. Undoubtedly, your son's doctor has been prescribing antibiotics intensively to keep his condition under control.

Because there is a tendency for some cases to have a recurrence, many physicians continue the use of antibiotics for many months, and even years, to avoid this possibility.

Moderate restriction of activity to avoid fatigue is part of the after-care program. It is most important that the child be allowed freedom of activity as prescribed by his doctor so that he will not be embarrassed in his relationship with friends.

When once he is physically recovered he must be made to feel emotionally recovered, too.

Can a person be unusually brilliant in one area and absolutely stupid in another?

Mr. J. J., Ohio

Dear Mr. J.: I would rather phrase the question to refer to difference of mental activity, rather than to "stupidity."

It is well-known that some people can be unusually brilliant and talented in some areas and be inconsequential in others.

Historically, there are many reported cases of "idiot savants" — one who may, for example, be a mathematical genius and yet not be able to function in society.

One of the aims of modern education is to avoid concentrating on highly specialized intellectual gifts, and instead to encourage a well-rounded attainment.

Is there any sound medical reason why a girl who is menstruating should avoid sports or swimming?

Miss B. R. W., Delaware
Dear Miss W.: Many myths, of course, have existed about menstruation for years without any scientific basis of truth.

Unless there are severe abdominal cramps that would interfere with such activity there is no danger to sports in moderation. Women stay out of the water during this period more for aesthetic reasons than because of medical danger.

SPEAKING OF YOUR HEALTH: Human bites are probably more dangerous than animal bites.

Dr. Coleman welcomes letters from readers, and while he cannot undertake to answer each one, he will use questions in his column whenever possible and when they are of general interest. Address your letters to Dr. Coleman in care of this newspaper.

The annals of bridge contain many famous hands, but here is one of the strangest ever recorded. It was played by Austria and Germany in the 1954 European championships. The bidding is not reported because it was indescribably bad.

At the first table, Karl Schneider of Austria, one of the greatest card players of all time, became declarer at six hearts and West led a club.

Schneider saw at a glance that there was no legitimate chance for the contract, but he decided to play boldly in an effort to steal the slam. After ruffing the club in dummy he played a low spade to the jack. West took the ace and led another club.

Schneider ruffed, overtook the king of hearts with the ace, and cashed the queen. After playing the ace of clubs he ran all his trumps, in the course of which West elected to divest himself of one of his diamonds.

Schneider's last three cards were the 10-5 of spades and a diamond, while dummy's last three cards were the A-K-6 of diamonds. On the last trump lead, East had to discard from the Q-J-9 of diamonds and king of spades. He could not discard successfully and Schneider brought home the slam for a score of 1,430 points.

At the second table, the German North became declarer at the equally unwieldy contract of six spades and he also succeeded in making the slam!

East led a club, won by the ace. Declarer played the jack of spades from dummy and everyone followed low! East thought that North had the A-Q and he hoped to confuse declarer by not taking the king.

Recognizing what was going on, North led a diamond to the ace, followed by a low spade towards the 10-5. East clung to his view that North had the A-Q and he played the king. It held the trick for a moment — until West took it with the ace.

So the two teams achieved one of the most Herculean standoffs in the history of the Leaving IU in his last year he worked on several news papers and in 1925 married Geraldine Siebolds. He worked successfully on the New York Evening World, the New York

One day Pyle was assigned to conduct Heywood Brown's popular column in Brown's absence. Pyle wrote simple, chatty descriptions of automobile tours which he had taken with his wife. Pyle's writings so impressed the editor-in-chief that Pyle was assigned to travel about the country and record his observations.

HEAT DRIVES THROUGHS TO LAKES, BEACHES

NEAR DROWNING VICTIMS: South Haven police and firemen are aided by bathers in carrying one of two youths to an ambulance after they narrowly missed death Saturday off South Haven's Lake Michigan north beach. The youths, John Urist, 21, of South Haven and Dick Hybell, 26, of Kalamazoo, were brought to shore by lifeguards when they became exhausted while attempting to reach shore after they had floated adrift on an inner tube. The swimmers had been told to stay out of the water because of an undertow, but lifeguards said they ignored the warning and entered the lake from a nearby private beach. They were released after treatment from South Haven Community Hospital. (Tom Renner photo)

Michigan Drownings Total 14

Chicago Man Disappears In St. Joseph River

Beaches, inland lakes and other watering spots in southwestern Michigan proved a magnet over the weekend for throngs of people who had suffered through a week-long heat wave.

The rush to the water, under sunny skies over the weekend, brought with it a toll of 14 drowning victims across Michigan, including a Chicago man who disappeared as he attempted to swim across the St. Joseph river in Sodas township Saturday.

Meanwhile, the weather bureau predicted cooler weather will prevail during the first half of the new week.

RECORD CROWDS

Crowds described as record ones for the season, were reported at many of the Lake Michigan beaches in the area. Reports from various inland lakes of the area said swimming, boating and water skiing traffic was heavy throughout the weekend.

At Warren Dunes state park on Lake Michigan south of Bridgman, a crowd of about 7,000 turned out Saturday, while Sunday's crowd totaled a capacity 13,500 and the park entrance was closed to more beachgoers for about an hour at mid-day, according to Park Supervisor James Andrus. About 80 percent were out-of-staters.

Marine officers of the Berrien County Sheriff's department resumed dragging the St. Joseph river this morning in the area where George Barnes, 47, of 6516 South Bishop, Chicago, disappeared Saturday.

WAS FISHING

L.A. William Bielman said Barnes was fishing along the riverbank in Sodas township with friends when he stripped to his shorts and started swimming across the river.

The friends told the marine officer that Barnes had gotten halfway across the river when a boat passed. The boat gave the swimmer a wide path, but waves washed over the swimmer's head and he did not reappear, Bielman reported.

The friends said Barnes had been eating sandwiches and drinking beer before going into the water.

Marine officers dragged the river during daylight hours Saturday and Sunday, and resumed the search again this morning.

Other drowning victims reported in the state follow:

Police said Mrs. Kay Stone, 22, drowned after a large wave knocked her and her 21-month-old daughter off the bow of a boat and into the Detroit River east of the Ambassador Bridge Saturday night. Passengers on another boat rescued the child, identified by police as Monica King. Authorities were searching the river today for the woman's body.

John Walter Tabja, 18, of Detroit, who drowned while swimming Sunday in the middle channel off Hanson's Island in the St. Clair River.

BUSY BEACHES: St. Joseph's Tiscornia park, like all of the Lake Michigan parks in Southwestern Michigan, was filled with people Sunday. Air temperatures were in the mid-80's, water temperatures in the low 70's, and other conditions ideal for sun worshippers, bathers, and boaters. These toddlers build it all very much to their liking. (Staff photo)

On Grand Mere

Zollar Vouches For Gast's Role

Endorsements of a state plan to acquire 400 acres of the Grand Mere tract near Stevensville were released today by State Sen. Charles O. Zollar, R-Benton Harbor.

The announcements were aimed at squelching a "whispering campaign" aimed against Lincoln Township Supervisor Harry Gast, Zollar said. Purpose of the alleged campaign is to win conservation votes away from Gast.

Gast is one of four candidates seeking the Republican nomination to the 43rd district state representative seat in the primary elections Tuesday.

The rumor going around, said Zollar, is that Gast and the Grand Mere association are opposed to the plan. That is just not true, Zollar declared. The Lincoln township board in a letter signed by Gast and dated June 10 endorsed the proposal, the senator said. The association has also indicated its acceptance.

The state plan involves appropriation of $350,000 of the $100 million recreational bond issue for buying part of the 1,200-acre tract. The purchase has been listed as the second priority by the State Department of Natural Resources (DNR).

A bill containing the listing and the amount is to be considered by the Senate appropriations committee when the legislature reconvenes Aug. 6. Zollar, chairman of the committee, is a key architect of the acquisition plan.

Zollar said the determination of the amount of land to be acquired was made by the DNR and encourages you in your efforts to obtain a portion of the Grand Mere area for use as a nature preserve or game sanctuary.

We will be happy to cooperate with you in any way possible in order to achieve your—and our—goal.

AGREES WITH PLAN

The letter added that the state plan corresponded with the township's regional planning commission's general development plan for the area, which had been endorsed by both the township and the Village of Stevensville.

In the release from the Grand Mere association, Don H. Galoway, president, said, in part, "This action has been endorsed by the Lincoln township officials and is received enthusiastically by the people of the township."

GUN INCIDENT

Operator Of Security Service Is Charged

The operator of a building security service has been charged with violation of the state firearms law in the wake of the Friday arrest of a Benton Harbor woman for assault with a deadly weapon.

Don Jewell, chief deputy of the Berrien sheriff's department, identified the security service operator as Eugene Schuchert, 26, a one-time Benton Harbor police officer now head of the Twin City Patrol Service.

Jewell accused Schuchert of giving a .38 caliber pistol to Willie Mae Murphy, 23, 405 Cedar street, Benton Harbor. Miss Murphy is charged with attempting to shoot a motorist who said he offered her a ride several days earlier. The motorist said he had swerved to avoid hitting the woman on Red Arrow highway, south of St. Joseph, last Wednesday.

The attempted shooting was reported to St. Joseph police by Devon Johnson, a Bridgman factory worker.

Another motorist reported the same night to Berrien county sheriff's deputies that he also found Miss Murphy lying along the highway and stopped to see what was wrong. She reported she was robbed and raped.

The motorist took her to the sheriff's department where she was released to the custody of Schuchert.

She was arrested Friday and was arraigned Saturday before Fifth district Judge John Iwanick. She demanded examination and was released on $500 bond.

Schuchert was released on $100 bond and was to appear in court today for arraignment on the misdemeanor.

Schuchert joined the Benton Harbor police department January 1967 and resigned a year later.

Training
Classes
Under Way

DOWAGIAC — Southwestern Michigan college has begun a training program under the Manpower Development Training Act, the first such program to be conducted in Cass county.

The program focuses on the nation's prime social and economic problems, the training of unskilled, low income workers and providing marketable skills for minority groups.

Currently 20 students are in a 24-week program that will qualify them as production machine operators. This skill was identified by the Cass County Michigan Employment Security Commission office as one of the critical needs in the county's employment priorities.

A unique feature of the program, which is federally funded, is that the workers, while in training, will receive pay sufficient to meet their living expenses during the training period.

Prime movers in securing the program for SMC were Carl Benedix, manager of Dowagiac MESO office, Francis Hiscok, dean of the SMC school of applied science, and Wesley Muth, director of the continuing education department.

The Manpower Development Program supplies new skills to those who are either unskilled or who have skills not currently in demand.

This is a beginning in meeting the needs of a critical transition period in which more than 50 per cent of the working force will require new skills supplanting previous skills in the employment picture.

"This means retraining of some of those who have skills that are rapidly becoming obsolete," said Wesley Muth.

Three persons with industrial experience, now members of the SMC faculty, are instructors in the program. Heading the machine laboratory is Duane Hall, assisted by John Flaherty, while James Ropes is conducting related class work in trade math, blueprint reading and precision measuring instruments.

Of the 20 trainees, nine are women. The class is scheduled to assume positions about Dec. 18. The placement of the workers will be under the direction of the Michigan Employment Security Commission. The state agency directing the operations for the federally funded program is the State Office of Vocational Education.

Those interested in participating in the program should contact Francis Hiscok at the college.

Members of the current class include Richard Maher, Charles Murray, Gloria White, Bobby Williams, Russell Williams, Edna M. Gobbs, Delores J. Forrier, Norman J. Diamond, all of Dowagiac; John Reid and Tommy Reid, both of Niles; Zilpha Rutherford and Cora Patterson, both of Decatur; Charles Williams of Benton Harbor; Rose M. Ball of Jones; Dolores M. Buchanan of Lawton; Tilton Crabtree, Marcellus; Warwick Humphrey, Coloma; and John Lipkins, Vandalia.

PAW PAW — All systems appeared to have the green light today in Van Buren county for Tuesday's 1970 primary election.

County Clerk Thomas Kiefer and other clerk's office employees met with township and election officials at the courthouse here late last week to work any remaining kinks out of the election reporting procedures.

Kiefer said an estimated 180 persons attended the meeting.

He said 23,542 persons have registered to vote. In 1968, he said, 21,430 persons were registered voters at the time of the primary.

The largest number of registered voters is in South Haven township, 1,441; and the smallest number in Gobles, 397.

PLENTY ON BALLOT

Besides casting ballots on U.S. Congressional candidates and state offices, voters will also be nominating county commissioners, township officers, and deciding special issues in three townships.

There are five primary battles for party nomination to the county board of commissioners.

Four of the battles are on the Republican side.

Incumbent Alfred Erny, representing Columbia and Geneva townships, and Breedsville, is opposed by Carl R. Filbrandt Jr.

Incumbent Charles R. Stein, representing South Haven township, faces challenges from Leonard Markstrom and James Powers.

Incumbent Willard J. Rumsey, representing Albena and Antwerp townships, and Mattawan, is opposed by Gus McKee Jr.

Incumbent Earl Pouter, representing Hartford township and Hartford, is opposed by H. J. Mecklin.

On the Democratic side of the ballot sheet, incumbent Frank Kolesar, representing Covert and Bangor townships, is being challenged by John L. Young.

Special issues in three townships are to be decided Tuesday.

In South Haven voters will decide on whether to lend their approval to a proposed pari-mutuel race track in the township.

LIQUOR ISSUE

Covert township voters will vote on a liquor-by-the-drink issue. Bloomington township voters will decide whether to approve 2 mills for four years for road and bridge construction and maintenance.

The name of County Clerk Thomas Kiefer will also appear on the ballot. Kiefer is unopposed.

The names of Luther I. Daines and Meyer Warshawsky, candidates to succeed themselves in the offices of district court judge and probate judge, respectively, will not appear on the primary ballot.

They will however appear on the general election ballot in November.

The judicial offices are non-partisan.

Volunteers 'Harvest'
Cass Marijuana Crop

CASSOPOLIS — Tons of marijuana fell before the blades of volunteer "harvesters" Saturday as more than 50 volunteers armed with corn knives and machetes flailed away at fields of pot standing as much as 14 feet tall.

The marijuana was growing on a Cass county farm, coming up annually ever since it was planted deliberately as a World War II crop. It was originally processed into hemp, out of which rope was made.

"The harvest" Saturday is part of a five year eradication program. From now on herbicides will be used to control the growth.

County Agent Fred Sackrider explained that the weed comes up annually from seed, and the seed can remain dormant in the ground for as long as five years.

Castle Heads
Republicans
In Weesaw

NEW TROY — Spencer Castle was re-elected chairman of the Weesaw township Republican club during the annual meeting held in the township hall.

Carl Gnodtke was re-elected vice chairman. New officers elected are Mrs. Evelyn Wirth, secretary; and Richard Naragon, treasurer.

The next meeting of the club will be a dinner meeting on Oct. 22.

Volunteers to cut the pot was supplied mostly by the Jaycees of Niles and Dowagiac, and boy scouts from Cassopolis and Dowagiac.

The cut weed was left in the field to rot. Sackrider said in two weeks it will be unusable as a drug. In the meantime, state police and Cassopolis deputies will patrol the area.

The farm where the marijuana was cut down has been the scene of numerous arrests of persons seeking the drug-bearing weed, officers said.

S/Sgt. Marvin Teska, commander of the state police post at Niles, supervised the cutting. He said the marijuana was found in patches ranging from 10 to 20 feet wide, extending as much as a quarter-mile long, and growing from 12 to 14 feet high in places.

Boat Driver
Charged
As Drunk

ALLEGAN — The first arrest ever made in Allegan county for drunken driving of a motor boat occurred Friday when sheriff's deputies arrested Dorm M. O'Neal, 34, of route 1, Martin.

Allegan county sheriff's department deputies were called to Lake 16 near Martin when O'Neal allegedly ran over a rubber raft and a surf board. Marine officers made the arrest when they found the motor boat stalled on top of the raft and board.

The boater was held in jail over the weekend in lieu of $200 bond. He will be arraigned today in 57th district court, Allegan.

When they were waiting, a car, driven by George Liles, 21, Holland, came over the crest of the hill on 68th street. Troopers said the brakes locked on Liles car and he skidded sideways into the crowd hitting four-year-old Jane Bruder.

State police said Liles' car skidded a total of 404 feet, crossed M-89, hit a car occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Harry Deters of Fennville, and came to rest against a sign. The Deters were not hurt.

Jane Bruder was taken to Butterworth hospital in Grand Rapids, where she was listed in serious condition today. She suffered a skull fracture in the accident.

Witnesses at the scene said wrecker owner Ernest McFarland threw one of the Bruder children to safety and trooper Morris pushed another member of the party out of the way of Liles car.

POLICE PRAISED

Fred Tresch praised the actions of the troopers and said trooper Jarman rode in the ambulance as far as the Community hospital at Douglas with Jane Bruder. Tresch said Trooper Jarman applied mouth-to-mouth resuscitation to the child once during the trip.

Treated and released at the Douglas hospital were Mrs. Bruder, who suffered cracked ribs, George Bruder and Mrs. Tresch for lacerations, and all other members of both families for cuts and bruises.

Liles was ticketed for reckless driving. Lowrey and his wife, Virginia, 34, were ticketed for being drunk and disorderly.

Dowagiac Citizens Will Decide
On Two Issues About Library

DOWAGIAC — City voters will add their voice to the controversial issue of whether Dowagiac will build a new library as they vote on two propositions at the general primary election Tuesday.

Voters will first say whether an ordinance which rezoned the potential library site (on Division and Green streets) should be rescinded.

On a second issue, voters must vote whether or not to allow the Dowagiac Building authority to issue $225,000 in bonds to help finance the new library.

Opponents of the issues claim the old library is suitable and opposed the proposed new site for the library.

Mayor James Burke, favoring passage of both issues, said it would cost more to remodel the old library than to build a new structure.

He added that architects and contractors have drawn a clear picture of the old library, saying the building is bursting at the seams with sagging beams, joints and window frames. "It is ironic, but even those who oppose construction of a new facility agree that the old library does not meet the needs of Dowagiac residents," Burke said.

The proposed structure would cost about $345,000. A federal grant has been approved for the city that would contribute $131,000 to that cost.

The new facility would house a library, meeting room for civic groups, an area for the deaf and handicapped and an area for elder citizens.
